RETURNS STILL COMING IN

McLin makes a Regular Mrs. Tilton Confession—He goes Behind the Returning Board

WASHINGTON April 25 The statement of Judge McLin is published. The first part is devoted to furnishing an excuse for his [illegible] first coming and then revealing the Florida election fraud. He says he believed that a Democratic triumph would be a national disaster and he should give the benefit of a doubt to the Republicans even to the extent of straining a point. He did not consider himself a judge but partisan He now sees that powerful influences swayed his judgment and prevented its normal action He was surrounded by northern partisans who urged on him the necessity of the Republicans carrying Florida, who pictured the danger to the [illegible] if Tilden triumphed and received daily telegrams insisting on his saving the country The chairman of the national committee and [illegible] with whom he had the nearest personal [illegible] of Hayes urged him to do his Republican duty and promises of troops were freely given Governor Noyes was present and was understood to speak with the authority of Hayes The influence of these men and the circumstances of excitement throughout the country may have led him to error and especially to the promise that Hayes would reward him His ardor was now cooled by time and by the reflection that the president had betrayed and mercilessly destroyed the Republican party and crushed those who did so much for his election He was now convinced that political expedience and not calm judgment ruled the hour There were many contested cases and much legal discussion The attorney general of the state and a member of the board had decided that the board had quasi judicial power and had a right to exclude precincts from the count, if returns were shown to be so irregular false or fraudulent as to prevent the board from ascertaining the true vote With this view of its duties the board entered upon the work of canvassing with the conviction that they were invested with large discretionary powers which were of a mixed character political and judicial—the political largely predominating Partisan zeal and strong political ties had a powerful influence in the exercise of these powers and the Republicans having a majority of the board the canvass was largely in their favor If the board had acted in accordance with the decision of the supreme court of the state defining the powers and duty of the board in reference to throwing out precincts since rendered there is no question of the fact that Tilden would have been certified to the vote of Florida I excluded the returns from Baker county which were counted and which I have since learned from parties who made it were falsely manufactured returns and including the true return which corresponded with the precinct returns of that county would certainly have given the state to Tilden Archer precinct No 2 Alachua county was included in the count The fraud committed in this precinct was not shown to the board by the Democratic leaders although the contest was made and much attention given this precinct but I have recently learned from the Republican leaders of that county that after the returns had been brought to Gainesville the county seat 219 votes were added to the returns by the inspector and clerk of said precinct In Leon county 74 Small (Rep) ballots were stuffed into the ballot box at precinct No 9 yet it was not made to appear even to the satisfaction of the Democratic member of the board that these were false ballots Subsequent confession shows that they were stuffed into the box In Jefferson county in a certain precinct at which J Bell was inspector 100 votes were surreptitiously added to the ballots and counted No charge was made as to this fact before the board The confession of Bell since made to me disclosed the fact Had the 219 votes fraudulently added to the Archer returns and the 74 votes stuffed in the box in Leon, and the 100 votes surreptitiously added in Jefferson county aggregating 393 votes been rejected and the Democratic rejected precincts which were excluded for irregularity and illegality contrary to the decision of the supreme court been retained and counted Tilden would have carried the state The conclusion there are is irresistible that Tilden was entitled to the electoral vote of Florida In making this statement my motives will doubtless be questioned by many but the facts will stand alone as truth without any more motives to sustain them Viewing things as I now do and remembering that Hayes was continually inspiring his personal friends and trusted agents by every means in his power to secure the electoral vote of Florida and Louisiana and believing it to have been a conscious wrong on his part done with the knowledge that he had not been elected as his subsequent repudiation of Governor Packard whose title was bound up in his own and his willful and cowardly desertion of the men who contributed so largely to his election has shown my contempt for the pitiable littleness of the man is beyond my power of expression Hayes has [illegible] the validity of his own title in denying Packard's He has ignored his Florida friends, showing that he believed them unworthy and tainted with fraud Yet he holds the presidency which in his own opinion was secured by this very fraud He has cowardly abandoned and betrayed his Southern Republican friends through fear of being ousted from an office that he believes he never was elected to Whatever may be the opinion of men in regard to my motives I give them the facts and I leave my motive to a higher tribunal

CHICAGO April 25—McLin's statement was signed and sworn to before the clerk of Thomas county Georgia

CHICAGO April 25—The Journal's Washington special says Blair is greatly disappointed at the Democratic nonchalance over McLin's confession The text of the document disappoints, many who anticipated that it would show conclusively a corrupt bargain

Floodgated with Florida Confessions

NEW YORK April 25—The World says a man named Selkirk called at this office yesterday and offered some valuable information of the Florida returning board for $300 His confessions implicate equally Republicans and Democrats He referred to a well known business man in town who upon being interviewed intimated that Selkirk was addicted to drink

NEW YORK April 25—The World's Washington special says the statement which McLin has made is generally admitted as a tame repetition of well known facts which have been pending in the committee on elections of the house in the contested case of Finley vs Bisbee of the second Florida district for the past four months and which have been given to members of both parties at different times during the session

The Florida Confessions

WASHINGTON April 25—It is stated regarding the Florida confessions that after the president nominated McLin and the nomination was rejected that McLin came again to the president who informed him he could do nothing for him He sent his name for another position under the [illegible] Dennis was [illegible] internal revenue agent for [illegible] not large enough to satisfy D[illegible] for the work he had done and he then [illegible] against the administration [illegible] friends of Tilden while others name prominent Republicans disaffected towards [illegible] Hayes

What Chandler thinks about the Confessions

NEW YORK April 25 The World's Washington special reports Wm E Chandler as saying [illegible] he did not believe that Dennis has made any statement or confession Perhaps McLin has [illegible] all that there is to say about the Archer district and Alachua county has been published [illegible] is nothing new. In Leon and [illegible] counties the whole story is a [illegible]. I have always thought Hayes honestly carried Florida [illegible] but if it shall turn out that McLin has been [illegible] it would only be necessary to pass a resolution through both houses declaring Tilden lawfully elected. I believe Hayes would have his baggage checked for Fremont before Tilden could leave Gramercy Park

No Knowledge of the Confessions.

The Florida delegation in congress has no knowledge of the confessions except of rumors that they are coming Senator Jones Democrat, [illegible] says he believes them to be true while Senator Conover Republican senator says if true he thinks they will have no more effect than the recent confession made in Brooklyn Ex Governor Stearns of Florida under whose administration McLin acted as secretary of state has not seen McLin's confession but thinks if one has been made it is a true one Gov Stearns says McLin can only give facts as they have been charged heretofore Whenever a question of doubt arose as to the settlement of any question concerning the electoral count in Florida McLin being strong partisan gave Hayes the benefit of it in making up the returns

Windom said he disagreed from the committee's conclusions This bill would necessitate further deficiency bills and the senate had already received seven from the house He opposed all these reductions as they would cripple the service

Beck defended the action of the committee and of the house and said the house had acted with great liberality toward this administration These deficiency bills were only temporary and forestalled the regular deficiency bill which would provide for all the departments He discussed the various sums demanded by the departments

2 That we deem it above and beyond any partisan character whatever to control so important a body or any member thereof selected for the formation of the constitution of our state.

3 That as representatives of the Democratic party, we do hereby solemnly declare it to be our desire in the approaching election for members of the state constitutional convention that all past party issues should be disregarded, and that none should be selected for membership in that body but the fittest without previous political affiliations Therefore we recommend that the people of the several counties and senatorial districts irrespective of parties choose two delegates for each member of the senate and assembly to which each county and senatorial district is entitled to meet in the city of Sacramento, Wednesday 22d of May to nominate delegates from each of the four congressional districts of the state to be voted for by the people of the state at large and we further recommend that the people of the several counties and senatorial districts in selecting their local candidates for the 120 delegates to the constitutional convention, apportioned to said counties and senatorial districts to ignore party politics entirely and select the very best men

FRIDAY MORNING APRIL 26 1878

AN UNTIMELY DEMAND

A political party which goes before the country at this time with a demand for repeal of the resumption act proclaims its own folly because resumption is already practically at hand. On all sides it is agreed that we want resumption, that is we want paper money to be good as gold and therefore convertible which is resumption itself. But just at this time when this very condition is reached in come the Democratic platforms of several states including our own with the assumption that money worth one hundred cents on the dollar is all wrong, and that the law which assumes that this description of money is a good and desirable thing ought to be repealed

If at any time heretofore when the paper currency of the country was depreciated and gold was quoted at high premium such resolution against resumption would have been a fallacy certainly now when we are within a quarter of one per cent of general resumption it is a stupid anachronism. It is the greater folly too because it assumes that resumption has been brought about by the law which it is proposed to repeal whereas in fact resumption through natural causes is anticipating the date fixed by the law. Were the law now repealed such act probably would have little or no effect on the fact of resumption

It is amazing that any class of persons should want a depreciated and fluctuating currency rather than a valuable and stable one. It should not require a very unusual degree of intelligence to see that a currency which is a definite and trustworthy expression of value is a better thing for a country than a currency which fluctuates continually, which affords brokers and jobbers always a rich harvest and which especially cheats labor because of the uncertainty of its purchasing power. The Democratic platform of Oregon presents at the most inopportune of all times a demand which should never be presented at all

VALUABLE RIGHTS

It is provided in the railroad bill that passed the senate the other day that in case the Northern Pacific company do not build the portage roads within a time specified, the Portland Salt Lake and South Pass company may build along the Columbia river, beginning at Portland. By the representative of this last named company no doubt this will be accepted as a great privilege. But it must first wait two and a half years. Isn't this a hard condition? Heretofore it has had the privilege of beginning at any time. Now it must wait till the expiration of two and a half years after this bill becomes a law. Residents of Portland who have been here from the time the city was founded will testify from their own personal knowledge that there never has been anything whatever to prevent the Salt Lake company from building this road along the Columbia river and that this is the first movement to throw anything in its way or delay it

Nothing indeed could be more farcical than all this part of the bill. Had the author's Witherspoon address been incorporated in the bill, it would not be more useless and inoperative. There has been much conjecture as to the meaning of Christiancy's amendment which provides that nothing in the bill shall be construed as recognizing the Salt Lake and South Pass company outside of Oregon. But clearly it was intended for the purpose of giving notice that Oregon is entitled to the exclusive possession and proprietorship of the fruits of her senator's wonder working efforts. The bill makes the Columbus River and Salt Lick road all our own

THE RETURNS STILL COMING

There is a new sensation connected with the electoral count. Judge McLin of Florida has "confessed." As nearly as we can make out his drift and meaning he designs to charge Hayes with being a great rascal because he (McLin) perpetrated frauds which gave Hayes the electoral vote of the state which service Hayes has not recognized and duly rewarded, therefore McLin's contempt for the pitiable littleness of the man who has ignored the Florida friends who did so much for his election is beyond the said deponent's power of expression. He coolly confesses that the frauds which he says he perpetrated were induced by the hope or promise that Hayes would reward him but the ingrate has done nothing of the kind and his ardor is now cooled by time. Hence these revelations. This confession discovers about the lowest creature who has yet put in an appearance in connection with southern politics. Hayes can be reproached only for having nominated him once for an office. Probably the reason why future effort was not made to give him position was the very one stated, namely, that the president "believed him unworthy and tainted with fraud." The author of this "confession" is beyond all comparison the most despicable scoundrel who has yet appeared. Blair, it is said, is astonished at the indifference with which his disclosures are received. But this indifference is accounted for by the utter contempt in which a scallawag of so paltry a character must be universally held

DEMOCRATIC DIFFERENCES

Differences exist in the Republican party of which we have accounts almost daily through the telegraphic reports. But we hear little of the dissensions between the eastern and western wings of the Democracy on financial questions. Yet there is a tremendous and rapidly widening chasm which divides them. On the 13th April the Democratic senators at Washington had a conference on the subject. There was no definite action except that the chairman Senator Wallace was instructed to confer with the chairman of the house Democratic caucus on the general situation. The senators were not agreed however and from their deliberations it was not apparent that they could be. Voorhees and others insisted that the Democratic party was pledged beyond peradventure or retraction to repeal of the resumption act a doctrine to which the eastern senators vigorously objected. The latter likewise protested against the income tax which southern and western senators insisted should be reimposed as a charge that would fall mainly on the north and east. Among other matters [illegible] was the rapid advance of the new National party which it seemed to be admitted will derive most of its strength from the Democratic ranks. Alarm is felt as to its effect on the fortunes of the party in Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania. Republicans in these states it appears to be conceded are in favor to less extent than Democrats with prevailing financial follies and probably the same is true in all the states

In 1874 the legislative joint committee on retrenchment and reform found that the expense of the penitentiary for two years, in excess of all income from it was about $[illegible]0 000. In the judgment of the committee the adoption of a system was possible which would save the state all in excess of $20 000 that is to say a saving of $[illegible]0 000 in two years. At the same time the opinion was expressed that the cost of conveying convicts to the penitentiary and the insane to the asylum which had mounted to $10 000 for two years, could be reduced one half. The total saving which it was reported might be effected in these items added to the amount that would be gained by reducing the salaries of state officers to constitutional limits was estimated at $[illegible] for two years

Those prohibitions which will not allow Col Sellers to begin the construction of his Columbus river road till the expiration of two and a half years are not fair. They repress enterprise and are a positive obstruction to the development of the country. Just why it should be made unlawful for anybody to begin construction of a railroad when he wants to is one of those things no fellow can find out. In this case a corporation is despoiled of a privilege it always possessed and an immemorial right is violated. The country will pronounce against this bill and will insist that Col Sellers shall be allowed to begin whenever he wants to. We want only what's fair

Here and there among the members of congress is a man who has proper comprehension of the political situation. At the caucus recently held in the hall of the house of representatives to consider the relations of the president and his party Conger of Michigan put in a remark that was right to the point. He said the people were tired of congressional dictation and the continual whinings of members about patronage and that for congressmen who are officeholders to dictate to the president what disposition he should make of the offices they did not themselves fill was immodest and the best thing the caucus could do was to drop the subject

Professor Baird, of the fish commission, is rejoicing over a salmon weighing 23½ pounds which was caught a few days since in the Delaware river, and is believed to be from a lot of salmon eggs hatched out in 1873 by the agents of the commission. But salmon at this rate are costing the government more than it cost Greeley to raise cabbages

The congressional directory shows that out of 369 members of the senate and house only 193 are natives of the states which they represent. But one state North Carolina is represented wholly by citizens born within it, while the delegations of ten states do not contain a single native

Every tramp now has his budget of disclosures about the Florida vote which he is offering to sell cheap. A gentleman named Selkirk follows up McLin and asks only $400 for a package of documents that will lift old Hayes out of the White House

The Baltimore Gazette is credited with a penetrating remark. It says the Republicans in congress have fully resolved to leave the administration to its fate—except when they want a friend appointed to office

CITY.

THE BABY SHOW.—At 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon the doors of Turn Halle were thrown open, and in a short time there was a goodly array of infants varying in age from months to five years. As they were brought in the numbers were attached and parties would be furnished with cards in [illegible] to be filled agreeably to the notion of [illegible]. The number of babies on exhibition probably reached sixty. Fond mamas exercised to exercise the greatest care to present the cherubs in the best possible light. A [illegible] young men dropped in and they found it difficult to select—the choice being in a great measure due to the attractions of the parent. There was a marked absence of young ladies, who no doubt felt a delicacy about taking an interest in the show, though they will over [illegible]. Their aid is necessary to assist [illegible] young men to select, and this too will govern the votes polled by bashful young men. Among the exhibits is a colored baby which fortunately does not meet with much attention, though its chances will improve after [illegible]. The happy parent of this child is Mrs. H. Hunter, of the chief quartermaster's office. Mrs. Prof Johnson's lovely twin [illegible] attract the most attention. There is but slight difference in their ages—hardly sufficient difference. We hope no one will quarrel [illegible]. They are "sweet" the ladies say [illegible] they ought to know. The particular favorites among the fat babies is Mrs Ross' boy Walter. There are two or three small bits of humanity. Some delicacy has been expressed about giving names there [illegible] unable to tell more. Master Day [illegible] at the piano, and the little ones [illegible] an occasional "war whoop" which keeps things lively. The show will be continued from 2 to 4 P. M. to-day.

"STATE OF CALIFORNIA."—The Alta of the [illegible] contains the following paragraph concerning the new steamer: "About the 1st of [illegible] next, Messrs. William Cramp & Sons, shipbuilders, Philadelphia, will launch a fine iron steamship, intended for the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, to run between San Francisco and Portland, Oregon. The new steamer will be 2,500 tons burthen and will have accommodations for 400 persons—[illegible] in the cabin and the remainder in the steerage. The hull will measure 315 feet long, 38 feet breadth of beam and 25 feet depth of hold, and the vessel will be brig rigged and furnished with compound engines, guaranteed to obtain a speed of 14 knots an hour. [illegible] will be furnished in first class [illegible], and every attention will be given to the comfort of the officers, crew and passengers. The new vessel will be christened the State of California, and the first iron vessel built in the United States under the rules of the British Lloyds."

AN EXCELLENT NUMBER.—THE WEEKLY OREGONIAN for the present week is now ready and for sale at the counter, price 10 cents. The current number contains a great amount of interesting news—editorials on leading topics, telegraphic reports from all parts of the world, choice miscellany, state and territorial intelligence, review of the markets, local news, etc. Among other interesting features may be mentioned a very pleasing and graphic account of the voyage of the steamship Oregon from New York to Portland furnished by our correspondent "Amelia." It is but justice to the lady to state that the account of the passage constitutes her maiden effort at writing for the press. She has acquitted herself with much credit, and deserves to be complimented. The incidents of the voyage will be perused with pleasure by all. Do not fail to purchase a copy of THE WEEKLY OREGONIAN.

LIVELY.—There was a world of activity down on the O. S. S. Co.'s dock yesterday. At the upper end of the wharf the Elder is lying, while just astern of her the Oregon is moored. From one end of the commodious dock to the other huge piles of merchandise were lying scattered about, and a large number of longshoremen were busily engaged in discharging the freight. Some eight or ten large trucks and drays were hauling the freight here and there and delivering it to proper destinations, but they did not appear to produce any noticeable effect on the heaps. There was a perfect Babel, so that nothing could be distinguished above the din and confusion. Persons having business to transact were compelled to keep their eyes open to avoid being run over. Verily, it was a lively day on the dock.

A SUBSTANTIAL FOUNDATION.—The stone foundation for the new brick building to be constructed the present season at the foot of [illegible] street, is almost finished, and the brick work will be prosecuted with all possible vigor. The foundation has been constructed in the most substantial manner. It has been built massively and is solidly cemented, and unless undermined by the floods or shaken down by some convulsion of nature, bids fair to stand for centuries. It is but truth to assert that no building on the Pacific coast can boast of having a better constructed foundation. Messrs. McCullough & Martin are the contractors, and deserve much credit for the excellent manner in which they have caused the work to be performed.

LEG BROKEN.—Wesley Robinson, a lad 16 years of age, employed at Carson's sash factory, had both bones of his leg, about three inches above the ankle, broken yesterday morning. He was working around the machinery, and in attempting with his foot to remove a belt from a pulley which sets close to the floor his foot was caught on the pulley and naturally passed round it under the belt, breaking the leg as described. He was conveyed to the residence of his parents on Fourth and D streets, where Dr H E Jones set the broken member and put the patient in as comfortable a condition as possible who, although suffering quite severely, is doing as well as could be expected.

LIVE HUNTER No. 2.—The little steamer (manufactured by Messrs. Clapp & Jones) which did such gallant work during the centennial week, and carried away the first prize, having thrown the longest stream of water, was brought down from Albany on the steamer Orient. The boiler tubes had become badly burned and were in a leaky condition, so it was deemed indispensably necessary to have the steamer repaired. On reaching this city the little steamer was hauled down to the Willamette Iron Works, where all needed repairs will be made.

WHARF IMPROVEMENTS.—A large force of men are engaged in tearing down a portion of the second story of Capt. Flanders' wharf near the foot of B street. The roof and siding have been torn away for the distance of 140 feet. The floor of the second story has been powerfully braced, and new plank will be laid down. The proposed improvement will cover an area of 140 by 90 feet. When completed, Capt. Flanders will have a continuous dock for about 520 feet, all under one roof.

HELD TO ANSWER.—A Spaniard named Martin Wilson, was arrested a few days ago charged with the crime of rape on an American girl named Ellen Swift, aged about 13 years. Wilson had a preliminary examination yesterday before Justice Bybee and was held to await the action of the grand jury in the sum of $500. Defendant could not furnish the required bonds and was committed to the county jail in default. Evidences of Wilson's guilt are said to be very conclusive.

BEING OVERHAULED.—The old boiler which for so many years has furnished the motor power to drive the now dismantled steamer [illegible], is lying at the iron works near the foot of E street. The boiler has been taken to pieces, cleaned out and will be thoroughly rebuilt. When ready for service again it is the intention of the company to [illegible] the boiler up the Columbia, where it will be placed on board one of the [illegible] running above Celilo.

ANOTHER FIRM.—In the published proceedings of the Common Council the names of Messrs Corbett & Failing appear as attached to the remonstrance against the construction of a new engine house for Willamette [illegible] No. 1. Messrs. Corbett & Failing did [illegible] the remonstrance but Messrs Corbett & Macleay did, with the same proviso as Mr Purcell, that the present house could be repaired to answer the purposes as needed.

FILLED UP.—We are pleased to note that the rock [illegible] by E [illegible] Front and First streets is being slowly filled up. A number of carts are engaged in hauling the [illegible] which is being excavated from different streets where improvements are being made and dumping it into the vacant block. It [illegible] up to the required grade it will be one of the first [illegible] blocks in the city.

NEW BOILERS.—Recently two large and [illegible] constructed boilers have been turned out by the Willamette Iron Works. One of these has been placed on board the [illegible] and the other is now lying on the dock at the foot of E street awaiting shipment. This boiler is to be sent up the Columbia and will be placed on board one of the new steamers now being built by the O S N Co.

FIRST AND DISMAL.—On complaint of a Chinaman, the proprietor of a [illegible] establishment, Special Officer Johnson was arrested charged with breaking several windows in the Celestial's house. Yesterday the case came up before Justice Bybee. During the trial the complainant failed to make out a clear case and the court had no alternative but to discharge the defendant.

DELINQUENT TAXES.—Sheriff Jeffery has just completed the delinquent tax list for the year 1877 and the same is now in the office of the county clerk. The sum total of the delinquent list is $9 495 15. About the 8th of May the list will be turned over to the sheriff with an alias warrant authorizing that officer to proceed to collect the same according to law—by levy and sale.

ARRIVAL OF RECRUITS.—Some sixty recruits arrived on the steamer Elder Wednesday evening under charge of Lieut Guy Howard, U S A, son of Gen Howard. These recruits will be distributed among the various posts in this department. Lieut Howard is at present stationed at Angel Island in San Francisco bay.

TO ACCOMMODATE VANCOUVERITES.—We are requested to state that the steamer Vancouver will leave Vancouver at 6:00 P M to-morrow (Saturday) night, returning 15 minutes after concert, round trip 75 cents, giving Vancouver people an opportunity of being present. Capt Gray has some reserved seats yet for sale.

OFF FOR THE EAST.—Our old and esteemed friend Ted Marks is a passenger on the steamer Oregon for San Francisco, and then takes a trip to New Orleans to visit his parents and will travel through the principal eastern cities in the interest of his firm, Messrs J M Pike & Co.

THANKS EXPRESSED.—The committee of the Congregational entertainment of Tuesday evening desire to express their thanks to Geo R Hamilton for the use of a fine Weber piano, also to Prof Schwabe and Miss Lambertson for their excellent music on that occasion.

TRIP OF THE PIONEER STEAMSHIP.

[illegible] NEW YORK TO PORTLAND OREGON, [illegible] STRAITS OF MAGELLAN AND VALPARAISO [illegible] STEAMSHIP OREGON [illegible]

[Concluded.]

CAPE [illegible]

[illegible] of the Magellan strait was sighted March [illegible] o'clock A M. We passed in [illegible] with fair breeze and tide with us. We made fast time to Sandy Point [illegible] the most southern town [illegible] America. [illegible] Cape Virgins [illegible] miles. This is the town where [illegible] admirably [illegible] of the [illegible] New York [illegible] We found the little town sadly [illegible] which was [illegible] the prominent part [illegible] rocks [illegible] the night [illegible] they could grasp to cover themselves [illegible] the night [illegible] continued for ten days as the [illegible] man-of-war usually lying in the harbor had [illegible] Water [illegible] steamer [illegible] which had been intercepted by the English [illegible] herd at Cape Forward having [illegible] boat with a broken arm as he was one of the first [illegible] target.

The people have not got over their fright [illegible] and in telling us many facts [illegible] excited. It would take many hours to write out all we heard and witnessed of the destruction. One poor woman took us to the enclosure where once stood her happy home. All now left was her flower garden from which she picked us beautiful bouquets of choice rare buds [illegible] sweet peas, rare geraniums etc. They were highly appreciated reminding us of our dear California home. The vegetable garden adjoining contained cabbages, peas, beans, artichokes and potatoes all fully ripe and in the last flowering as it was fall here and in July will be their cold winter weather. On passing the ashes of her home she showed us the frame of her piano lying with other rubbish. On the 15th, the day before we arrived, nine of the convicted mutineers were drawn up in line to face death which they met with a bravery worthy a better cause. Throwing their coats in the air they gave three [illegible] and each in turn acknowledged his guilt. Allowing their eyes to be blindfolded and baring their breasts they coolly ordered the soldiers to fire upon them and in a moment they who were full of life lay senseless and bleeding on the ground. The bullet had performed its mission and the life which God had given was taken away by the hand of men giving rise to the question Is it right?

Some of our passengers visited the spot and graves of the victims. We had no desire knowing the element that hovered over such a place could not impart peaceful thoughts. The rest of the convicts were taken on board the Magellan as prisoners which was getting under way for Valparaiso and sailed that afternoon where they will be tried for their lives.

The execution of the ringleaders on the spot of their outrages was done to intimidate others who might still have revenge in their hearts.

We bade our kind friends good bye and [illegible] was [illegible] the glacier peaks [illegible] our little boat were [illegible] alongside of our good ship Oregon [illegible] thankful to Divine Providence that our homes were cast in pleasanter places.

Thursday at 4 o'clock A M we were under way sailing down the straits almost directly south while over our bows in the distance lay Barren Island with Mt Tarn lifting its snowy peak high up in the clouds ready to catch the first kiss of the day god as he rose, sending the light over the face of this wildly rugged grand piece of God's architecture.

The passage through the Magellan Straits is one of rare beauty as all know who have had the pleasure of the trip.

The first point of entrance from the Atlantic side of the Patagonian coast with low lands seemingly barren sand hills with very little vegetation—and continues so until we approach Sandy Point when thickly wooded mountains rise in the background and from the point out through the straits we now have an ever changing panorama.

The mountains reach from the water's edge high up where the snows never melt, while at the base clothed with lovely green and beautiful little water falls trickling down the sides; the grasses are ever growing.

It did not seem possible that it had been near two years since we first enjoyed this view and as we approached Rocky Point (where the P M S S steamship Georgia lay so long) we gave it a wide berth as we had done before.

CAPE FROWARD

Now towers above the intervening points, and the captain remembering our success once before offered the helm which was gladly accepted for many reasons. The pioneer steamship that had been built specially and named for Oregon was about to pass the southernmost point of our continent with what deep feelings of gratitude we could not find words to express as she so grandly rounded the cape at 10½ A M and was once more headed northwest homeward bound. In honor of the occasion and event the captain christened the gun and ordered it fired, waking the echoing hills in the distance and causing the little seals sporting around to pop up their heads in wonder.

From Cape Froward to Port Angosta the view of snow peaks, glaciers reaching to the water's edge in many places was very remarkable, while near proudly rising were other mountains without a flake of snow seemingly bare of all vegetation until examined when found covered with shrubbery and flowering vines that would be a rare addition to the flora of California. Wild celery grows in abundance and is very acceptable and of fine flavor.

We came to anchor at

PORT ANCOSTA

At 5:30 P M on the 21st and found it a most desirable and picturesque spot seemingly hewn out of the granite mountains that enclosed it—that the weary navigator may find anchorage for his ship and escape the furious storms that are so prevalent at this place coming so suddenly.

We found the rocks covered with beautiful verdure and flowering vines, and those of the party who went ashore to paint the ship's name and destination on the smooth rocks far above the anchorage which could be read plainly without glasses were more than repaid for their trouble. Our commander leading the way soon found himself up on top of a very high ridge overlooking a small lake that was formed by the snows melting from the mountain above us. The party sent up three cheers and christened it in honor of his discovery. The lake overflowing came gently rushing down the mountain side in beautiful cascades and emptying in the bay near us. I am sure a lot of our ship's company will ever have a pleasant little picture of this anchorage in memory. As the shadows deepened the call from the ship's deck that dinner is waiting (come home) was distinctly heard by the party who were sorry to leave the charmed spot so soon.

Saturday morning 23d at 2:30 A M got under way and passing out in the straits were soon headed for the Pacific ocean via Cape Pillar. It was a charming morning, and as the gray tints of early morn changed to the rose and purple hue, as the sun came rising majestically up over the glaciers, we called our fellow passengers to enjoy the rare sight with us even at this early hour knowing they would be amply repaid in looking to the last view of sun rise over the ice capped mountains.

We passed Cape Pillar the southwestern entrance of the straits at 9:30 A M and happy were we to see the clear old Pacific once more and bowing in silent prayer to the guiding hand above we felt like kissing the waters that sparkled so bright around her prow, knowing that many thousand miles away they laved the shores of the home we loved. It was clear and beautiful as we cleared the straits leaving the lone Evangelist far off on our starboard bow, the last sentinel marking the northern side of the entrance to the straits. When forty miles out took a heavy swell from the northwest, with fresh breeze, which made all feel very uncomfortable for some hours.

VALPARAISO

We entered the port of Valparaiso, Chili, at an early hour on the 27th, and found we had arrived some three days sooner than expected by advices from New York. We found this truly a city of hills, the houses running parallel one above another the highest terrace being 300 feet above the level of the sea; an open harbor with great depth of anchorage capable of accommodating a large fleet. The city of Valparaiso is at the foot of a range of cuestas or hills from 1 000 to 14 000 feet in hight on one of which called Telegraph Hill, there is a signal station giving notice of the approach of shipping. Of late years the city has been enlarged and greatly improved, large buildings have been erected, streets paved, a commodious wharf nearly completed and many other improvements still in progress. We enjoyed a ride through the principal business portion of the town in the street cars that run so close to the narrow sidewalks that you step from the curb on to the platform. The cars are two story and collect fares accordingly, carrying as many on the roof provided with seats as inside. We visited the markets where we found every variety of vegetable and many of the fruits of California. The grapes are unsurpassed and [illegible]. The climate is said to be very much like San Francisco—surely was such all the time we remained there.

The streets are kept fresh and clean, not a paring or scrap of paper of any kind, even a cigar stump is allowed to be thrown on the streets under the fine of $5 for breaking this law. Would that it could be enforced in our cities.

We were quite impressed with the appearance of the ladies of Valparaiso as they promenade the streets at the early hours of day dressed in [illegible] black, which at the fashionable promenade hours [illegible] are changed for beautiful colors and styles that rival any of our own ladies. The black manta, many of them very richly embroidered and trimmed with fine lace, is gracefully thrown over the head and shoulders, closed with a clasp under the chin—not like the Peruvian [illegible] the Chilian ladies when dressed after this manner are accompanied by a female servant walking behind them carrying richly embroidered square carpets for kneeling in the churches as these churches have no seats or pews, the floor being kind of [illegible] on which are [illegible]. This custom of [illegible] however has been discontinued.

[illegible] CHILI

Are noted for their small and [illegible] and as [illegible] the [illegible] Parisian [illegible] very graceful in their movements and in the [illegible] are far [illegible] the gentlemen in Chili [illegible] at least. They are hospitable, kind and amiable to strangers and after short acquaintance put one at ease [illegible].

SANTIAGO

[illegible] capital of Chili is reached by railroad distant [illegible] hundred [illegible] mountain ridges and opening [illegible] each [illegible] There is great wealth in Santiago, so we are [illegible]

an the city is unsurpassed [illegible] world [illegible] line of cleanliness. It would take volumes to [illegible].

[illegible] streets with little rivulets of water running each side coming from the foothills of the Andes [illegible] snows twenty two miles away. It [illegible] the Paris of South America.

Our last evening in Valparaiso was passed at the hospitable mansion of Mr C——, with his charming family, high on the terrace overlooking the city, bay and harbor [illegible] bright picture for all time.

Saturday March 30th at 4 P M all being in readiness we weighed anchor [illegible] out of the harbor [illegible] arriving [illegible] thirty-seven fathoms. We have several passengers from Valparaiso [illegible] among them the [illegible] David W [illegible] bound for [illegible] Valparaiso. He is well [illegible] and [illegible] warmly welcomed [illegible].

[illegible] Mr Ward [illegible] well known [illegible] of Valparaiso [illegible] all [illegible] will be warmly welcomed [illegible] home.

[illegible] Valparaiso [illegible] with the captain his wife and first officer [illegible] of the wrecked ship [illegible] which was lost [illegible] in March [illegible] with his [illegible] so we have [illegible] first officer and sailors with us.

April 1st we were treated to a beautiful sight, Venus [illegible] star of the planet group shining brightly in the heavens in [illegible] days.

One of the [illegible] would not look up saying "Oh yes we know there are plenty of stars still [illegible]." When told by us earnestly they should certainly be one of the victims of All Fool's day [illegible] they did [illegible] courage and witnessed the unusual sight.

All is hurry and bustle on board painting, getting the ship in fine dress for her home welcome. As we approach the equator the awning spread and with temporary bathing quarters where warm salt baths may be had at any hour of the day we were very comfortable as the thermometer ranged one hundred.

CROSSED THE EQUATOR

On April 8th at 10 o'clock A M ship's position at 12 M lat 0 4 north long 83° 4 west—nine days from Valparaiso. We threw another bottle in the 10th milestone containing the notes of interest by the way and a picture of our commander trusting that the same Power which watched over the little waif in 1876 and brought it so mysteriously a welcome friend to our land may still watch over this, and it is possible we may hear of its safe arrival at some friendly port. The christening of the little pet of the Oregon on Sunday April 14th was the event of the day. May her voyage through life be as successful and happy as this ocean voyage promises to be. Unexpectedly the Valparaiso passengers paid their tribute to Millie's charms in the evening by quoting historical events relative to ancient customs of naming children celebrating this event [illegible] and [illegible] in place of Puritanical solemnities. We passed Point [illegible] at the entrance to San Francisco bay [illegible] at 3 A M on the 19th, and as we swung in to [illegible] our welcome home we sent many greetings on electric wires that went flashing around the globe. This was the first time our commander had passed the Golden Gate in some thirty years.

We [illegible] time up the coast arriving off Columbia river bar April 21 at 12 M. Found the bar very rough from the strong northwester that had been blowing for several days. Have 3½ hours to spare ere the tide favored us for crossing, steamed slowly up and down outside signaling for a pilot and soon saw the little tug Astoria coming to our aid, and at 4 o'clock entered the north channel with the first breakers rolling up behind us white and foaming until it came along midship not even dampening the promenade deck of our beautiful ocean palace rolling the waves quietly on this her baptismal day over the far famed and much dreaded

COLUMBIA RIVER BAR

All along the course from Cape Disappointment flags were flying and cheer after cheer rent the air as the handsome stranger gaily decked with flags of all nations sailed so majestically up the harbor where hundreds stood waiting to receive her and as she swung alongside the wharf the band struck up a welcome home.

Our passage up the river on the following morning was a continuation of the Oregon welcome. Passing Swan Island boom went a gun from the city just coming in sight then followed a grand salute peal after peal echoing through the woods. The city was gaily decked with the stars and stripes, whistles blowing as we passed up to the wharf where thousands were ready to greet us—this being the second steamship our commander had brought from New York for the O S S Co'

The gun from our bow sent the reverberating echoes city ward, announcing the near approach and end of the first voyage of some 16,000 miles of the lucky steamship Oregon.

In closing we feel assured that no steamship has made such a voyage of pleasure sailing.

Her officers in every department are courteous and kind and we fully recommend her to every way. May her voyages hereafter be as successful as the present one, is our earnest prayer.

A STRANGER'S IMPRESSION OF PORTLAND.

A gentleman who arrived here from Valparaiso direct on the steamer Oregon, writes the following letter, in which he incidentally pays a high and not undeserved compliment to Portland. The writer says:

The writer who is a California pioneer of [illegible] was a member of the first Winchester Expedition early in 1850 to the Rogue and Umpqua rivers. Since the above event the hospitable shores of Oregon have never been visited by him until now. Upon passing the mouth of the Rogue river in the steamship [illegible] was vividly brought to mind the loss of all on its crew 28 years ago. The boat upset by the surf; three occupants were washed ashore upon the southern point (then named Mar[illegible]) finally meet their death at the hands of the savages; this too in full view of all on board the schooner. And was [illegible] sole and I alone am left to chronicle the event. Fortune again has brought me to your shores, this time a passenger on the pioneer steamship Oregon. For she is the first ocean steamer direct from New York or foreign ports at least so far as I am informed. I have no doubt your readers would be pleased to know the impressions formed by this event.

Arriving at Astoria on Sunday amidst the firing of guns, music and cheers of the people, the city decked in flags, I was somewhat astonished at the event and puzzled to know the cause, and it was only upon inquiry on shore I found I could claim the honor of a pioneer passenger. The first impressions of Astoria were not favorable, but after fully understanding the occupation of the people, I was soon convinced of its true worth. Our stay in this place was shorter than I could have wished. From the time we left Astoria to our arrival in Portland the shores of the river were lined with flags and the people filled the air with greetings. Evidently our steamer was looked upon as one of the great events in the history of the country. At Portland we ran alongside the wharf saluted by artillery, and in a few moments the excited populace were aboard of the Oregon.

Portland is certainly a bright, business, enterprising city. The inhabitants appear cheerful and industrious and my experience has led me to fully appreciate the hospitality and kindness of the community. As for the ladies whom I have seen, I cannot offer them a more truthful or higher compliment than to speak candidly my impressions. Their appearance is modest and lady like, their figures graceful and complexion healthful to an extreme. I defy any city to produce finer specimens of womanhood than I have seen when promenading the thoroughfares of the city.

My short stay in your midst (the steamer Oregon is announced to sail on Saturday) leaves me no opportunity to say more than that I have been more than surprised at the thrift and enterprise of the people and I shall long remember with pleasure my pioneer steaming trip to Portland.

Domestic Produce

For the season, business in this department continues to show a more than average degree of activity and though the movements in other months of the year have been much larger the aggregate transactions foot up better than usual for the month of April But little is being done in the staple of wheat the general feeling among buyers being that the uncertainty of things in Europe rather tends to discourage the hope of high prices while holders in whom the wish is not altogether father to the thought incline to the belief that war will yet result from the Anglo Russian complications, and the foreign markets be again greatly advanced Should the present dispute be settled in time without a resort to arms the abundant harvests now promised in all the grain growing sections of the world coming on prices would certainly drop to a low figure The opposite proposition of course is equally supported as the scales of war seem to poise for with the two governments in a state of hostility prices in all the markets of Europe would as certainly go up The inactive condition of the market now prevailing will therefore continue until the uncertainty which latest advices serve in a very limited degree to clear up gives way to definite action either establishing peace or letting loose the dogs of war

Flour is in adequate supply for the local trade and dealers are by no means anxious to accumulate large stocks so near harvest as all who have an opportunity to observe the markets admit the existence of danger in carrying heavy supplies into the next harvest year Prices however are steady at the quotations given before

Oats have not come forward very freely during the past week and at times the supply has been rather below the wants of the trade but still the slackened demand for export and the rapid advance of the pasturage growth have a tendency to make the market dull and to depreciate prices. Shippers are only offering about 40 cents per bushel for good lots unless to fill special orders for a choice article for milling an advance of 2@3 cents might be obtained Barley hay and mill feed show but little or no change since our last weekly report The supplies of hay and ground stuffs are ample to meet the enquiry, barley is in very light receipt, all coming to hand being taken for local consumption

Provisions are steady and quite brisk The local demand shows some increase and there is some call for shipment to points north and east. Prices are firm, with some disposition to hold choice lots of lard and bacon for an advance Dairy products are in fair supply with no unusual demand. The jobbing trade for choice lots of butter pay full prices but shippers offer such low rates that very little or none is being sent abroad The San Francisco market shows no inducement to shipments thither Eggs have sold to the local trade through the week at 20 cents per dozen but shippers are paying 2@3 cents less.

Potatoes rather contrary to the general expectation still remain at a high figure and several lots have changed hands at $1 50 per bushel, which is only about 10@15 cents above the current market price for choice lots. The receipts show a falling off in volume which indicates that the surplus is being nearly cleared out.

The wool market has as yet taken on no features from which its course on this coast or at the east can be safely predicted Another fortnight and we shall be able to see more clearly indications which will have a bearing on prices for this leading staple during the approaching season The eastern markets now have a depressed appearance
